Band Interview: PARTY DAY

PARTY DAY: PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN GLASSHOUSES

PARTY DAY were a band from Wombwell, Barnsley.
I interviewed them twice, just as they were issuing their highly-rated album 'Glasshouse' in 1985

Originally we were just post-war. Then we were post-Imperial, post-Industrial, post-Beatles, post-Punk, post-Marxist, post-Feminist, and even post-Modern – the general accumulative impression being that somewhere along the line we've missed out, we've come along too late, it's all happened. So what can a poor boy do except play in a Rock 'n' Roll band?

Among the glut of north-east England guitar-led bands-to-watch who successfully escape any
